

BIO - Leandro M. Malavota

Bachelor's at History from Universidade Federal do Rio de Janeiro (2003), master's at Social History from Universidade Federal do Rio de Janeiro (2006) and doctorate at History from Universidade Federal Fluminense (2011). Has experience in teaching and historical research, focusing on Nineteenth and Twentieth Century studies, acting on the following subjects: intellectual property, patent system, innovation and economic development. Analyst at the Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics (IBGE), developing activities in the fields of Corporate Memory, treatment of historical sources and information dissemination, based on the theoretical-methodological concepts of Public History. Professor of Intellectual Property Academy of National Institute of Industrial Property (INPI). He is one of the founders of the Proprietas Network, a multidisciplinary team of researchers focused on issues concerning property rights, access rights and common good.